BIG STORM IN CUBA

STORM RUSHING NORTH—200 LIVES LOST IN STORM IN THE NORTH SEA.

Havana, Oct. 15.—The full force of the hurricane which has been sweeping over Cuba and the Gulf struck here late Friday. All business has been suspended. The wind tore the roofs off buildings and uprooted trees.
Several persons were reported injured. Ships are ashore on the coast.

200 Lives Lost in North Sea.

London, Oct. 15.—Two hundred lives are believed to have been sacrificed to the fury of the tempest which has swept the British coast of the North Sea for the past two days.

The steamship Cranford went down at sea, and it is almost certain that all on board perished. Twenty-five bodies have already been washed up on the shore at Hartlepool, all of them encased in life belts marked "Cranford." All were members of the crew.

It is thought that many other craft of various sizes have foundered in the storm, and the loss of life will probably prove the heaviest recorded in a decade.

Fishing Boats Lost.

Fishing boats have been dashed to pieces upon the rock bound coast on both sides of the German Ocean and even the large liners have had the greatest difficulty in making port.

A dispatch from Gilethead, Wales, says that six men were drowned in the wreck of two fishing boats off that port.

The washing ashore of a score of the bodies of sailors was the first indication received of the catastrophe that overwhelmed the steamship Cranford. The fact that the men wore life preservers convinced the coast guards that the big craft had gone to the bottom, unable to survive the terrific power of the tempest.

Swamped in Life Boats?

Soon after five more bodies were washed ashore. As the bodies were those of the crew it was believed that that the seamen took possession of the lifeboats when the vessel became doomed. The lifeboats had been swamped either by too heavily loading or else by the high sea which was running.

Boats were put out bearing life savers, in hope of picking up survivors from the Cranford.

The Cranford was a steel built vessel constructed by the Gray Shipbuilding company of this place in 1888-89.
She was a screw-rigged ship and modernly equipped. The Cranford hailed from London and was owned by the marine firm of Pyman Brothers. She has been in the trade continuously for a score of years and plied in Atlantic waters.

MARINES STAY IN NAVY

Anonymous stories, said to be based on the belief that naval officers desire to have the Marine Corps assigned to duty under the control of the war department, were taken cognizance of Thursday by Mr. Beckman Winthrop, acting secretary of the navy, by a request that a denial of these stories be printed.

"This old rumor, which has gotten started again, ought to be killed, for there is not a word of truth in it," he said.

"I regard the Marine Corps as a highly efficient and valuable adjunct to the navy, and so far as I am informed, it is the intention of the Navy Department to keep the marines on board the vessels.

ALONGSIDE OF WHITE HOUSE

Grahame-White Lands In a Washington Street

PRESIDENT NOT AT HOME

There Were Plenty Others, However, to Give Darling Aviator, Hearty Greeting—Calls Around White House After Making Trip From Race Track Six Miles Outside the Capital—Two Slight Accidents

Washington, Oct. 15.—Grahame-White dropped in his airship at the side door of the White House, in a space where the slightest deviation from his course would have impaled him upon the spikes of the iron fence around the White House grounds, at his right, or driven him against the granite wall, at his left.

The aeroplane struck the asphalt paved street squarely in the middle and rolled 200 feet along the stone and iron hedged lane in as straight a line as an automobile could have moved.

The aviator's visit to the White House followed an aerial flight of more than six miles across the city, and his landing was upon a precisely selected spot in the narrow street.

On the way thither, at a height of nearly 500 feet, he circled the dome of the Capitol and passed the lofty Washington monument level with the apex. He landed between the great building of the state, war and navy departments, and the low structure of the executive offices.

President Taft was not "at home" to receive his unexpected caller from the air, but Admiral Dwyer was there to grasp the hand of the daring aviator and to offer congratulations.

"I am proud to welcome you," exclaimed the hero of Manila bay, with enthusiasm. Other high officials of the army and the navy departments crowded about the aviator and added their word of commendation.

An hour later White again ascended from the from the spot where he had landed and returned to his starting point, the Henning race track, without mishap. Later in the day, while giving exhibition flights, he had two accidents which resulted in slight damage to his two aeroplanes, but the aviator escaped unhurt.

When White started on his remarkable flight he rose to a height of 500 feet by circling about the grounds and then darted away toward the city, six miles distant. Making his objective point the Washington monument, upon reaching that point, he turned his machine northward and sailed directly over the White House. He then circled the state, war and navy building and turned northward again, directly toward Executive avenue, a one block street, not more than sixty feet in width.

Police had closed the street to traffic and the people were cleared from it, but several thousand persons had gathered in the White House grounds, in addition to those who crowded every window of the big government building, and stood on the broad steps and portico.

As he flew about the building Grahame-White brought his machine to a lower level and gradually descended as he approached the street from the southward. When he reached the lower end of the thoroughfare he was about fifty feet in the air—with a descent he brought the biplane to the pavement before he had reached the centre of the block. The flight occupied only ten minutes.

At 3:30 p. m. when White's Blériot monoplane started to make an ascent, a heavy side wind blew the machine through two fences before he had risen ten feet. A propeller blade was broken but White escaped uninjured except for a bad shaking up.

TESTS ARE SUCCESSFUL

Destroyer Drayton Makes Four-Hour Run at Average Speed of 29.5 Knots
Bath, Me., Oct. 15.—After being delayed in her start because of bad weather conditions outside and failing to get away until afternoon the torpedo boat destroyer Drayton successfully completed her final acceptance trial, a four-hour run, at an average speed of 29.5 knots.

She maintained an average during the four hours that she was outside of 30.8 knots, and even then no attempt was made to push her because of the rough weather and only thirty-seven of the forty-two oil burners were in use. The Drayton also came well under requirements as to water pressure.

KING MANUEL'S FLIGHT

It Made Aid For Manuel Impossible, According to Royalist Officers
Lisbon, Oct. 15.—King Manuel, in a letter to personal friends, asserts that he was forced to leave his country because the ministers absolutely abandoned him. The royalist officers, on the other hand, maintain that they were ready to continue the fight, but that the king's rapid flight left nothing to fight for.

A rigorous censorship is being maintained upon all news except platitudes concerning the new government. The correspondents, it is alleged, are allowed to telegraph nothing concerning the doings of the anti-clerical mobs.

The government endeavored to conceal an incident in connection with the arrival at Lisbon of the American cruiser Des Moines. A Portuguese officer warned the commander of the danger of a torpedo attack or a submarine mine. As a result everybody aboard the Des Moines was alert through the night, but nothing happened. The British cruisers received a similar warning.

YORK COUNTY BANK LOSS

Depositors Get Final Report on Stealings of Treasurer Ingersoll
Biddeford, Me., Oct. 15.—Five hundred depositors of the York County Savings bank, which was closed upon the discovery of a shortage in the accounts of the treasurer, Richmond H. Ingersoll, listened last night to the final report of the committee appointed by them to assist the trustees in the readjustment of the bank's affairs.

The committee report, which was adopted, said that from a private account book found in the desk of Treasurer Ingersoll, there was a reason to believe that of the total shortage of about $300,000 a loss of $193,000 was due to bad investments made by the bank between 1874 and 1903. During this period of nearly thirty years, the losses were charged off to the profit and loss account.

PLASS SOUGHT BY FEDERAL OFFICERS

Light Is Wanted on Investment Company Methods

Boston, Oct. 15.—Federal authorities admit that they are looking for Norman Plass, president of the Redeemable Investment company, whose manager, Charles H. Brooks, is under arrest on the complaint of using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

It is understood that Plass used for references among investors of the shares of the company letters that had been given him by prominent and influential persons when he was raising funds for Washburn college, of which institution he was the president for seven years.

At the home of Plass at Newton, Mrs. Plass said that her husband left Boston two weeks ago to go to Vancouver. His purpose was, she said, to look up some timber lands there in which he was interested.

WATER FAMINE RELIEVED

Palmer Pumps Needful Fluid Through 2300 Feet of Hose

Palmer, Mass., Oct. 15.—The play of relieving the shortage of water in this town by pumping a supply from the Burieligh brook seems likely to prove successful. A good supply of water is now pumped through the 2300 feet of hose laid from the brook to the centre of the town and forced into the mains.

It is estimated that the brook will furnish about 150,000 gallons daily, while the local water company's reservoir at present yields but 75,000. The normal consumption of the town is 250,000 gallons daily, but all users now are consuming much less than the ordinary quantity.

JOHN P. MITCHEL

Young Acting Mayor of New York City and Reformer

MITCHEL GIVES LIE TO GAYNOR

Harmony Flees In New York City Administration

LIST OF WICKED PLACES

Mayor Says It Was Trumped Up For Purpose of "Scandal and Sensation"—Mitchel Comes Back With Retort That Charge Is a "Deliberate Lie"—Wants Police Commissioner's Official Record Lopped Off

New York, Oct. 15.—Mayor Gaynor and John P. Mitchel have come to an open break on the question of police neglect in dealing with gambling and other vice. The mayor charged that a list of suspected places compiled by Mitchel as acting mayor was prepared in a "sensational newspaper office" and trumped up for purposes of "scandal and sensation."

Mr. Mitchel answered that the charge was a "deliberate lie," and in turn made the accusation that the mayor was attempting to create a public misconception of true conditions. He again stated that Police Commissioner Baker had failed to obey orders and was incompetent.

Since Gaynor returned to city hall, following his two months' absence, he has intimated several times that he did not approve of the course taken by Mitchel when acting mayor in directing a crime investigation. The mayor had intimated that the action was inspired by a desire for publicity. But in a letter to Baker the mayor not only discredited Mitchel's entire conduct, but intimated that it was a conspiracy of his enemies, in which the acting mayor had been an accomplice.

The clash occurred when Mitchel learned the contents of a letter that Gaynor sent to Baker. Gaynor took occasion to denigrate the insinuations that the city is vice ridden. He ordered Baker to apologize to the owners of some of the premises mentioned, declaring that no vice existed in their places.

Mr. Mitchel reddened when he read the letter. He had been trying to have Baker removed on the charges of insubordination and incompetency. He had a list, prepared by investigators, of places where, he charged, vice flourished. He declared they could not exist without the police department knowing it. He thereupon demanded the official decapitation of Baker. Gaynor asked that the matter be deferred until he returned.

Immediately upon his return the mayor made it plain he was not in sympathy with the actions of Mitchel. That he disapproved of the attitude of Mitchel is shown in his letter to Baker, which led to the open clash.

LACK OF GREAT LEADERS

Canalejas Sees No Chance For Spain to Become Republic

Madrid, Oct. 15.—Premier Canalejas says that there is no chance for a republic in Spain, as the Republicans have no great leaders and their ranks are hopelessly divided. Moreover, the radical nature of his program involving a struggle with the Vatican, the premier says, is disarming the Republicans, as anti-clericalism is one of their strongest principles.

An official note has been issued announcing that advices from all parts of Spain indicate that there had been no demonstrations of any account to commemorate the death of Ferrer, and no disorders.

American Potato Vindicated
Paris, Oct. 15.—A commission of scientists has come to the conclusion that American potatoes are no longer a source of contamination and the French government has decided to admit this product, which has been barred since 1875 on the ground that it was infected with a disease dangerous to French potatoes.

BOUGHT WITH OWN MONEY

Property of Widow Glover Must Be Reconveyed to Her

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 15.—Judge Hitchcock of the superior court found for Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, widow of Clarence E. Glover, the Waltham laundryman who was murdered some time ago, in her suit against her brother, Tobias Le Blanc, for a reconveyance of the homestead estate in Waltham, which stood in the defendant's name. She asked the court to hold that her brother held it in trust for her on the ground that it was her money that paid for it. The judge found a resulting trust in favor of the complainant and directed the defendant to reconvey the property to her.

The judge found that the complainant purchased the property for $5000, the money being drawn from a deposit in the Waltham Trust company. The account in the bank was opened in 1903 in the name of the defendant. All deposits were made by her at different times of her own money; no part of deposits was made by defendant. She kept the bank book and withdrawals were made on orders signed by defendant.

MURDER VICTIM FOUND

Italian Believed to Have Been Slain For His Money

Hull, Mass., Oct. 15.—The nude body of a man, bearing long knife wounds on each side of the neck, also wounds indicating an attempt to behead with an axe, was found on Sunset Point beach.

The body is believed to be that of Frank Cosimona of Hull, who has been missing for several weeks. It is believed by the police the man was murdered and robbed of $250, which he is known to have had. Cosimona was an Italian resident of this town.

The body was found bound up in a quilt which was secured by a piece of telephone wire passed several times around his body and around his neck. Great hopes are placed in the quilt which surrounded the body, for it is believed certain that this can be traced.

GIVEN IN CHARGE OF FEDERAL OFFICIALS

Proceedings For the Extradition of Murderer Charlton

New York, Oct. 15.—Porter Charlton, the confessed murderer of his wife, Mrs. Mary S. C. Charlton, was ordered to be turned over to the federal authorities in proceedings which have been instituted for his extradition to Italy.

Judge Blair of the New Jersey supreme court declined to release Charlton, and issued the order for him to be placed in charge of the federal authorities.

Charlton was arrested on a German liner in Hoboken on his arrival from Italy last summer, shortly after the body of his wife had been found in a trunk in Lake Como, Italy. He confessed to having killed his wife and was held to await the action of the Italian authorities and the federal government.

Riggs and his party discovered the mountain while at work on the boundary survey near the Porcupine river, north of latitude 67. The mountain is east of the 141st meridian. The height of Mt. McKinley is 20,480 feet.

There is much latent literary talent existing in Portsmouth and vicinity. Judging by the number of well written essays sent in by the boys and girls of the schools.

There is going to be a sharp contest for honors this coming Tuesday for high school essays are entering the lists in kindly numbers. The reward of a ticket to see "The Shepherd King" is not the only incentive. There are bonuses to be gained.

To be among the 25 clever lads and lasses who will form the theatre party will be a matter of pride. There are some wee contestants from the lower grades sending in their little essays and under the conditions of the contest they will have just as good a chance of winning as their big brothers and sisters.

There are not many days left before the closing of the contest. Every one of the bright boys and girls should make an effort to win a place in the theatre party and the roll of honor, for the names of all the winners will be published in the Herald next Wednesday for all the city to read. There is no restriction about the style of the composition. The story of the play may be criticized from any standpoint the writer sees fit, but the limit is set at 150 words. A few words more or less will not disqualify the writer, but the shorter the better.

Many people are calling up the Herald office by phone and asking for further particulars of the contest. There are no further particulars. All the conditions have been set forth fully in the Herald and are again run today. Any school pupil of Portsmouth or vicinity can get a ticket for next Thursday night's performance of Wright Lorimer in "The Shepherd King" at Music Hall by writing an essay on the story of the play which will be placed among the 25 best papers.

In other words the Herald will give away, absolutely free, 25 Music Hall tickets for next Thursday evening's performance to this number of school children who write the best essays from the synopsis published below. All papers must be sent to the Herald office not later than noon on next Tuesday. The names of the winners will be announced in Wednesday's Herald and the tickets will be distributed at the Herald office the next morning.

The synopsis of the story is as follows:

Story of "The Shepherd King"
"The Shepherd King" deals with a period 3000 years distant. The central figure is David, and the story begins at the home of his father, near Bethlehem, where the simple life of the shepherd lad, who afterwards becomes king, is shown in its primitive surroundings. Here comes Prince Jonathan and the Princess Michal, bearing a command from their father, Saul, the mad king, commanding David to play and sing before him at his encampment. The second act shows the Israelitish camp at Elah, which has been harassed by the Philistines for 40 days and nights. Goliath, the mighty giant of Gath, has repeatedly challenged any of Saul's army to meet him in combat, but no one has been found who is brave enough to go against him. The capture of a notorious Edomite while engaged in an act of treachery, brings on Saul one of his mad spells, and he raises his javelin to strike the traitor to the earth, when David, by his singing and playing, charms away the king's anger and restores his reason. Again comes the fierce challenge of Goliath. David offers to meet him with his sling and the death of the boasting monster at the hands of the shepherd forms the climax of the act.

Act three is the throne room of the palace of Gibeon, two years later. Saul has begun to fear and hate David and a great jealousy takes possession of his heart. His eldest daughter, Merab, having learned from the prophet, Samuel, that David is to become king at the death of Saul, now seeks his love, but David is constant to Michal, whose life he has saved and whom the king has promised for his wife. He is also comforted by the strong friendship of Jonathan, who has learned that of which David has not yet dreamed, that at his father's death, it is David and not he who is to become king. In an outburst of anger, Saul attempts to slay David but his life is saved by Hithbon madden Andora who rushes between them and receives the javelin's thrust. David turns upon the king and denounces him for his wickedness and amid the flashing of the lightning and the rolling of thunder of the gathering storm, that proclaims Jehovah's wrath, he renounces his command and rushes out into the night.

The first scene in the fourth act takes place in the cave of the Witch of Endor, six months later, where Saul has come to learn something of the future. The spirit of Samuel appears to him and foretells his death and that of his son. The last scene is in the courtyard of the palace the next day. Saul and his army have been routed, his son slain, and himself mortally wounded. The arrival of David turns defeat into victory. He is reunited to Michal and upon Saul's death, ascends the throne.

INDUSTRIES FOR PORTSMOUTH

The news of the coming of another industry to this city is the sort of news that ought to appear more frequently in our columns.

It is not a good thing for a town or city to depend upon one industry, for when that is flat, all is flat. The greater the variety of industries, the more steady and sure are the growth of the community. These are old facts, and there is nothing new in them, but they are fundamentals for prosperity.

Portsmouth already has a considerable variety, with the navy yard, the breweries, the shoe factory, the button factory, the twist drill factory, the rendering plant and various other establishments, not great industries, but valuable industries.

With our deep water harbor, unused water front, accessibility to the interior, and intelligent population, Portsmouth can offer enviable opportunities for the establishment of new industries. And Portsmouth is ready to bid any one welcome.

BIRDSEYE VIEWS

The Maine Democrats are getting into a fight among themselves over whether a lawyer or a farmer shall be sent to the United States senate. It is fair to make things sizzling hot when the legislature meets.

Since the opening of October resolutions against resumption of the prohibitory liquor law clause of the Maine state constitution have been adopted by the state conventions of the Baptists, Free Baptists and the Grand Lodge of the International Order of Good Templars.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

A Boston Journal Idea

Jack ashore is always a popular figure. There was a striking illustration of this in the parade of Wednesday, when the bluejackets from the ships in the harbor were joyously received all along the route.

But Jack ashore presents a serious problem. The problem has been stated thus: "How shall we induce our men to continue in the navy?" The facts are presented in a report made by Capt. Albert C. Dillingham, thus: "Today we find of the enlisted force about 6 per cent of the men on their first enlistment, about 16 per cent on the second enlistment, and only about 4 per cent on third enlistment, with the rest scattering." These facts speak for themselves. Now as to Capt. Dillingham's conclusions: "The needs for a continuous service force, around which may revolve the comers and goers, seem to me to be obvious and need no argument, and if the United States is to attain the highest state of efficiency and to maintain that standard it must increase the number of continuous service men very considerably." The present term of enlistment is four years, and the assumption is that men enlisting will remain in the service for some time, and, in fact, make the navy their career, but Capt. Dillingham's figures demonstrate clearly that after the first enlistment the desire for a renewal of service is comparatively slight. In the British navy the enlistment covers twelve years and apparently this makes for a much steadier or longer service, amounting, in fact, to a career in many cases.

Fine ships alone do not make an efficient navy. The ships must be adequately and competently manned. The character of the American service is excellent so far as it goes. The question remains, however, as Capt. Dillingham has stated, how to keep the service equal to the demands imposed by the bigger navy policy. It certainly will not do, as some of our court justices seem to think it will, to sentence delinquents to the navy as to a reformatory. That idea, if generally adopted, would ruin the service in short order. No, the plan must be to make the service still more attractive, and that is the problem now confronting not only the naval authorities but the people themselves. —Boston Journal.

Roosevelt Weakening His Party

An Associated Press dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., reports Theodore Roosevelt to have made this statement to friends in that city: "By George, if I thought I could carry a single South-

CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK,
In Woman's Home Companion.

The Boy's Right in the Home

(GRANT the boy the privilege of having his friends to meals as often as you can conveniently arrange for it. Perhaps you are among those fortunate ones who have a large family with a big table where the addition of an extra plate counts for little. If such is the case your way is simple. Should there be several sons to plan for, consider a system of rotation that each may have his guests in a fair ratio. If your family is small so that it is desirable to have a little notice in advance, before adding another hearty boy's appetite to those you have reckoned for, fix on a certain time when your boy may ask a friend in to dinner or supper. Boys are delightfully uncritical creatures, bless their hearts. Give them a cordial welcome and plenty of food, and they will never miss frills of serving.

Study other compensations for the abstinence from natural racking you are obliged to demand from your boy while he is at home. Provide him chances to let off steam elsewhere, in places intended for just such relaxations. Send him out into the open on holidays and give him the means of pursuing any athletic sport which attracts him. Be sure that there is a good playground connected with the school he attends. Encourage him to work in the gymnasium.

All the compensation you offer the boy need not be limited to the possession of a pleasant room and the other privileges I have mentioned. Don't forget that when he displays the consideration demanded of him in a well regulated family he is putting a restraint upon himself you can hardly understand, no matter how close your sympathy with him. Many comments have been made upon the wonderful self-control displayed by the child who submits without protest to a prohibition or grants prompt obedience to a command beyond his comprehension. Largely a matter of habit, possibly, but there is a great deal of thought going on inside that small head and, oftener than we imagine, we parents are being haled before a child's mental judgment seat and condemned unreservedly or with a recommendation to mercy.

on state I would willingly run for the presidency."

The mind of the conservative public, already disturbed by the suspicion that the ulterior purpose of Mr. Roosevelt's extraordinary activity since his return to this country was to put himself in line for nomination for a third presidential term, will be shocked by his virtually positive declaration that that is his purpose. Conservative sentiment regards him, because of his exaggerated radicalism, recently publicly expressed on several occasions, as a presidential impossibility.

In the circumstances, Mr. Roosevelt's attitude cannot, but be detrimental to the chances of the Republican ticket in this state. His declaration might make his candidacy in 1912 an issue in the coming election. —Albany, (N. Y.) Journal.

A Merited Criticism

Another pleasant little episode in the administration of the immigration office at New York is the detention at Ellis Island of a boy who came to this country for the purpose of travel in company with his tutor. He is not an undesirable alien, nor is there the least danger that he will become a public charge; yet he is held under a rigid interpretation of the law because the tutor is not his parent. Has not the depth of official stupidity yet been reached? —Providence Journal.

OLD

They say I'm old—perhaps I am—But not too old to dream and laugh, And I've a pipe and a colle dog, And some memories and an drunken staff.

They say the best of my span is gone, That I deny, for today I know The deep, true things of life and love, That were hid from me in the long ago.

I would not be a boy again, With a boy's unrest and a boy's desire.

I sit and rock with my hands at rest; The sun is falling behind the hill; And a reasoned faith in the things to be—

The better things—is with me still.

My house is small, and my fare plain, My books are few and my eyes are dim;

But the stars are hung in their wonted place, And the world is good to the very rim.

—Century Magazine.

It is unfortunate that Portsmouth is once more on the eve of another political row, which means dissensions that bring about personal rows that only bring the city into political brawls without any good results. The city has been making good progress for the past few years and it is hoped that nothing may be done to give the city a set back.

A meeting of a number of gentlemen from various portions of the state was held in Concord on Friday to talk over matters of means of booming farming in New Hampshire, and also in the interest of attracting other industries. The meeting was called by W. T. Billings, Industrial agent of the Boston and Maine Railroad, and it was stated that the meeting was for the "exchange of ideas" and some sixteen speakers were called upon and the meeting showed much interest. The Industrial department is certainly doing some good work.

The selection of F. E. Brown, for many years General Passenger agent of the Concord and Montreal and the other New Hampshire lines, as his assistant to General Passenger agent C. M. Bart, with headquarters in Boston, is a deserved promotion. For years Mr. Brown was one of the best known railroad men in the country and for years the Concord and Montreal Railroad had the finest system of any road in the country. The absorption of the Concord and Montreal Railroad by the Boston and Maine Railroad, Mr. Brown has been stationed in Concord.

Cushman Cook of the Republican state committee is one of the busiest men in the state and he told the writer on Friday that the Republican candidate for governor, R. P. Bass, would pay this city a visit before the election. Mr. Bass has made hosts of friends in Portsmouth and he is assured of a warm reception on his visit here. Mr. Bass is attracting large crowds everywhere and is making good with the voters.

Nothing done in Portsmouth for months has caused more comment than the action of the school board in adopting the medical inspection system as a good many people do not understand what it means. There is no reason for any alarm as it is something that has been done in many places for years and it will lead to good results. Many parents have been alarmed and many different opinions exist but the plan will work out all right.

Some day, and not far distant, Portsmouth must have an army and navy club, and some of the retired navy officers now residents of the city should get busy and perfect an organization. Portsmouth needs a club where the visiting officers can feel at home, and there are many local officers to assist in the work.

BOMB NEAR AMERICAN EMBASSY

DISCOVERED IN TIME—THOUGHT TO BE WORK OF THE REDS—RAILROAD STRIKE DYING OUT.

Paris, Oct. 15.—A powerful bomb was discovered by the police today at the foot of a large tree in Avenue Kleber, near the American embassy. The officers attribute the attempted outrage to Anarchists, who sought to put new ginger into the apparently dying railroad strike. The embassy is located at 18 Avenue Kleber. The bomb was removed to a laboratory, where examination showed that it consisted of 300 grams of creddite powder and several iron bolts. It was similar to the bomb which was exploded Thursday night in front of the house at No. 6 Rue de Berri, a few doors from the Champs Elysees.

Traffic conditions generally were improved Friday. The western railroad is still practically tied up, but eight per cent. of the employees of the Northern road failed to report for duty this morning. Provisions in sufficient supply for Paris are arriving.

Premier Briand has informed the cabinet that negotiations looking to an increase in wages for the railroad men are being considered with their employers.

The last golfing event of the season at the Country Club will be held on Thursday of next week. It will be a team match the lowest to pay for supper which will follow the match.

The football games for today in this vicinity are the High school and Herwick Academy at playgrounds this afternoon, and the U. S. S. Tennessee and the U. S. S. Montana at the Kittery field.

WRIGHT LORIMER AND MARGOT MERRIAM IN "THE SHEPHERD KING"

Lorimer in "The Shepherd King" a playwright as well as an actor for Wright Lorimer, now without doubt in a generation at least there has not been a more consistently characteristic writer than that in which he is now appearing. While the story centers about David, one of the most interesting characters in the Old Testament, religion does not enter into its construction. "The Shepherd King" is a great drama broad from the pen of Mr. Lorimer himself, in its treatment, yet reverent and elegant in its tone. The story of David and Goliath is well known to every school boy, and the wonderful affection between David and Jonathan is also household knowledge. And who can forget the gruesome account given of the visits of Saul to the witch of Endor? All these and much more are depicted with marvelous fidelity to Biblical accounts. As the great book does not tell us much of the early love adventures of David, Mr. Lorimer has taken the license accorded to the dramatist and has introduced a love story between David and Michal, the younger daughter of Saul. The story opens when David is summoned from his flock on the hillside of Bethlehem to amuse the mad king, Saul, with simple shepherd lays. Here he hears the taunts of the giant, Goliath of Gath and slays the Philistine with a stone from his sling. The intrigue of the corrupt court is shown and David is brought into the midst of it. He leads the troops of Israel to victory and by his popularity incurs the jealousy of Saul, who seeks to destroy him. Saul himself is destroyed and David becomes king of his people. Manager William A. Brady has surrounded his star with an excellent cast of more than 100 people, among whom are many well known players. There is a very attractive band of trained dancers introduced in the third act and a fine chorus. The entire production is on a scale of unusual magnificence and depicts the barbaric splendor of the period with amazing fidelity.

Beauty in Phil Ott's Company

We admire everything else that is beautiful in nature, why should anyone blame us for admiring beautiful women, especially when they are brought before us in an atmosphere such as is created by the surroundings in the musical comedies to be presented by Phil Ott's comedians at Music Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 18, 19.

That this kind of entertainment is

PHIL OTT

In keeping with the requirements of the time is proved by the liberal patronage being given everywhere, since capably audiences are the rule wherever this company appears and at a time, too, when scores of companies organized in accordance with old ideas have been going to the wall.

Mr. Ott believes in giving the public amusement, clean, refreshing and entertaining amusement, and the musical comedies he presents have been written with this one idea alone in view. There is a plot, of course, in each production but not of the problem order, simply a thread for introducing the various talents of his supporting company, each member of which is given every opportunity for holding the middle of the stage though, perhaps, only appearing in a minor role.

Mr. Ott himself is very liberal as compared with other stars in this respect, probably because he realizes his own strength. Consequently, there is nothing but laughter from start to finish and those who have never seen him before, on departing from the theatre are fully convinced that musical comedy at popular prices is an assured success where Phil Ott and his comedians hold the boards.

Secure your seats early. When Phil Ott appeared last season in Quebec, the Morning Chronicle of that city published the following: It is to laugh! No one could gain say this fact two minutes after Phil Ott had stepped out to the front on the Auditorium stage last evening, when his musical comedy company opened an engagement in the Ancient Capitol. There was enough doing all the time to keep the audience exempt from any worry as to what the possible plot might be or might have been. Mr. Ott has some ideas of his own, and one of these is that a continuous show is just about the proper article to fill the needs of the public in the amusement line. He does not believe that good money should be spent to sit and wait for what is to come next, but has an idea that the proper way is to keep the fun going continuously from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Consequently there are no intermissions, and from first to last the audience is hardly given time to recover from one ludicrous absurdity until it is plunged into another. An audience which completely filled Quebec's leading theatre was kept in a continuous state of hilarity and all departed when the curtain was finally rung down, well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

Phil Ott stands out, as was expected, as one of the most amusing, eccentric comedians seen here in a long time. His very appearance was an appeal to the risibilities of the audience, while his songs, his witticisms, his dancing, his actions and his originality won for him the most enthusiastic recognition. He won a great success, and he referred in kindly terms before the show ended to the hearty manner in which he and his company had been received.

Phil Ott has a highly capable company supporting him, and the performance is a clean, laughable and wholly enjoyable one. There are no two opinions apparently as to the success which this clever company won, and there will undoubtedly be some record breaking audiences during their engagement.

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back"

When Messrs Shubert decided to send out another company of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," he chose Ian Robertson for the part of the stranger because he has been playing the part for the past two years in Great Britain, and stipulated that he should bring out his full English company, every member of it, so that the American public could see a smooth show which had been built up for two years, and now stands as a crystallized piece of work, whose equal it would be hard to find on the modern stage. Although amusing, "The Passing," as it is familiarly called is not really a play at all, but a beautiful lesson of christian charity, preached in the inimitable style of Jerome K. Jerome. It ran seven months in New York, and twelve months in London. It has been declared by the clergy of all denominations to be the play making for most good of any that has been for the past decade. "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" will be given at Portsmouth for two performances on Saturday, October 22.

Keith's Theatre.

Every week at R. F. Keith's theatre new faces brighten the bill, and next week will be no exception to this rule, as there will be a number of newcomers, allstars in their particular lines, with several old and tried favorites. One of the newcomers will be Gene Green, who has made a tremendous hit during the past few weeks singing his own songs in a characteristic manner. The Field brothers are also newcomers, recently with one of the big minstrel troupes. Among the old favorites are

FOR NEW STATION

Railroad Officials Look Over Location on Friday

On Friday, several Boston and Maine officials in a special train went up on the Dover branch and made stops along the line between this city and Dover.

They were accompanied by several civil engineers from the engineering department, who were engaged in laying out the location for a new station at what is known as the Roberts property just above Dover Point.

A stop was also made at the location recently purchased by the American Fertilizer company from the Wentworth estate where the party passed an hour or more looking over the land between the railroad track and the river front.

The official party was made up of General Manager Frank Barr, General Superintendent C. E. Lee, Assistant General Superintendent C. H. Polger, Superintendent of Portland division William Merriau, Superintendent of Southern division John Rourke.

The train, in returning to Boston via Dover, was delayed an hour at Lawrence by the locomotive getting off the track.

ed early this morning, and so far, is the largest one of the navy fleet to enter the basin at this station. A large number of spectators were on hand to watch the work, which was carried out with no more excitement than would be caused by the docking of one of the small gunboats.

Two Extra Good Men Going

In the departure of Col. Kane and Major Leonard of the marine corps from this station the yard is losing two good men. The battalions under their command here have advanced to a high degree since these officials were assigned to this post and both the colonel and major are very proud of the men and their work at Portsmouth. It is safe to say that no body of Uncle Sam's marines doing duty at any station of the government can produce a better all around record than the men under Col. Kane and Major Leonard.

POLE LOCATION STARTS TROUBLE

Board of Public Works Stops Proceedings on Church Street

The board of public works and a crew of workmen from the Postal Telegraph company, had a clash over a pole location on Church street on Friday afternoon, and the Public Works appears to have won out.

The pole, which is to put in a sidewalk of three feet off Church street, wants all electric lines confined to one pole, which has been located near the head of the street.

The Postal, it appears, does not want to mix up with other lines, and started to pick out a new location and began digging in another place.

Supt. Parker of the street department demanded that the telegraph crew call it off as they were digging into the space mapped out for the walk. A large sized kick was on, and the result was that the superintendent dropped a large rock into the hole and blocked the game.

The Postal Telegraph company and the city officials have attended no love feasts together ever since the company was ordered to take their lines off the public playgrounds. There is no apparent reason why this company cannot occupy the same poles with other companies. A few more big sticks in some of the small streets of the city, such as Church street, and there will be no room for traffic outside of a man pushing a wheelbarrow.

THE WONDERER

I wonder if there wasn't something doing at the ward two o'clocks on Friday evening?

I wonder if ward four won't produce the big show on Tuesday evening, next?

I wonder why that life net in the fire department has been kept in cold storage since it arrived from the makers?

I wonder why a crew has not been picked to give it a test at least?

I wonder if those reversible scales being put in by the Consolidation coal company, are not the very latest thing for weighing.

I wonder if the night patrol from the navy vessels at the navy yard is not a good move on the part of the commanding officers.

I wonder what the bridge from Kittery to the navy yard will look like after that seven thousand dollars is used up in material and labor?

I wonder why the Portsmouth electric street railway does not apply a few pots of paint to its wooden poles on the streets where its lines are operated?

I wonder why those quilt pitching artists in the navy and the Frank Jones aggregation don't get together and find out who is entitled to the honors?

I wonder why the meeting of the board of public works and police commission should be any more private than the meetings of the city council, board of instruction etc?

I wonder when the government will ever start digging out the mud in Pepperell Cove?

I wonder if Cupid has not struck an awful blow in Portsmouth in the last six months?

I wonder if the new officials of the Boston and Maine railroad are not quietly looking into the improvements needed in this city?

I wonder why some of the old standby's now in ward four are throwing up the sponge and refusing to meet the enemy on that famous political battle ground?

I wonder what the public works department are going to do with those sewers on Daniel street and Washington street, that have caused so much trouble for the past dozen years?

I wonder why the new city directory does not contain a great number of names that should be there?

I wonder who will put the paint brush to the new municipal quarters on Daniel street?

I wonder what is up now in ward four, and what the next exciting or surprising move will be?

I wonder why rent continues to be so high, and tenants so scarce in this city?

I wonder how many of the old wharves along the water front in south end would hold a steamer in case of fire?

I wonder when the street sprinkling business will be carried out to suit everybody?

I wonder why the old city farm buildings are not advertised more by the board of trade if they intend to get any manufacturing firm to come here and occupy the same?

I wonder when that press club bowling team will get busy on the alley?

Looking for Riggers

The list of riggers at the yard is exhausted and work is awaiting men of that trade who care to register for the same. One rigger, the only one on the list, was called today.

Smoke Up Boys

Jack Perreault of the machinery division, is the happiest man in the outfit. So happy is this resident of New Castle avenue that his comrades are smoking the best in the market on the arrival of a baby daughter at the family home.
